

DELLA PERONIERE

FRANCESCO PAVONI

The background of the entire page is a reproduction of Leonardo da Vinci's painting 'Lady with an Ermine'. It depicts a woman in a blue dress and a red patterned garment, holding a white ermine. She is wearing a dark headscarf and a long necklace of dark beads. The painting is set against a dark, almost black background.

Leonardo da Vinci, Lady with an Ermine (1489-1490; National Museum, Krakow, Poland)

Great art is often stolen.

Many, too many, stolen works of art simply disappear, sometimes into the murky labyrinths of the criminal underworld for years, decades or forever. Or else they are destroyed, casually thrown away, or mis-identified and lost to us.

But some are recovered, saved for future generations to enjoy once more, and put back on public display.

During the Stolen Beauty: Must-See Stolen Masterpieces Tour you will see masterworks, across many genres and countries. They have in the past been stolen, sometimes more than once, but are now back on public display.

The works we will see in France, Belgium, Poland, Austria and Italy are a very few out of the great many. All are great works of art, and each has its own unique story to tell.
